

Second Add Round on Pā

The next add round is the easiest. We will be adding every two moe on the ends and every three when it gets tight on the sides.

We start the second add round by isolating our starting point with pins. Where to start is up to the weaver. I start at the second of the two kū added on the long side. We will moe over two kū.

After weaving two moe we lay in our hāunu moe kū.

Here we have woven two more moe after the hāunu. Time to add again.

Keep adding after every two moe until it gets tight on the long side. Then add after three moe are woven.

The kū are starting to fan out, so it is time to go back to adding every two moe woven.

Puni. Mark the starting side with a pin. We will not trim the adds because we will not be doing a maka of maka moena to hold them in. Notice how the long sides have curved out because of the adds. Compare with the bottom picture on Chapter 5 Page 9 where the sides are straighter.
